ABSTRACT

DE JESUS, SARAH CHRISITINE V. Analysis on the Implementation of Gender and Development Program in selected barangays of General Trias City. An undergraduate thesis. Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. Department of Social Sciences and Humanities, College of Arts and Sciences, Cavite State University, Indang, Cavite. April 2018. Adviser: Ria Anne C. Rozul, Technical Critic: Anna Michelle G. Ramos, LLB.

The study was conducted during the first and second semester of A. Y. 2017 – 2018 to determine the implemented Gender and Development programs of General Trias City in year 2016- 2017.

The study is about actions taken by the barangay in implementing the gender and development in General Trias City. The findings of the study shows that the current status of gender and development of General Trias City has improved a lot in the recent years wherein the gender and development programs of the barangays continues to implement programs that can help their communities to grow more. The local government of General Trias continues to encourage the barangays of the city to promote the gender and development to their citizens and also guides them in implementing the programs of gender and development. In the result of the study, it shows that barangay captains and the committee representatives of the barangay has a different perspective or views of the problems that they have encountered even though they are in the same barangay because some of them thought that they have accomplished well their responsibilities. The overall result, shows that the implication of gender and development programs in the city resulted to the continuous growing of the city, the citizens of each barangay became more knowledgeable and that they gain from the programs implemented by the barangay. Hence, The Gender and Development should be improved more not only in the City of General Trias but also throughout the rest of the country.

INTRODUCTION

"Man and woman are a peerless pair; being supplementary to one another; each helps the other, so that without the one, the existence of the other cannot be conceived and, therefore, it follows that anything that impairs the status of either of them will involve the equal ruin of them both." - Mahatma Gandhi

Despite many local, national, and international laws focusing on the development, equality and human rights, change in deeds and attitudes on the part of governments, religious and other institutions, are still necessary. When looking at the key development issues, to look at these through gendered lens - looking at how development decisions and practices affect both men and women. When it comes to addressing gender and development issues, it is usual to look at the relations between men and women in social, economic and political, focusing on global inequalities, always keep in mind, however, that we all play a part in supporting inequality no matter where we live in the world. We look at issues of power, which can prevent development and which can hinder participation in, opportunities for, and involvement in one's own community.
