"Cases in International Relations ties central concepts to current problems and dynamics facing states today. The book challenges readers to consider conflicts and global phenomena through the lens of IR principles."

—KERRY CRAWFORD, James Madison University

"A valuable book that helps students apply theory to real world events."

—BINNUR OZKECECI-TANER, Hamline University

"An important text for facilitating students' understanding of the complex concepts of international relations through updated case studies."

—MARIUS RATOLOJANAHARY, Northern Virginia Community College

DESIGNED TO COMPLEMENT THE MAIN THEMES of any introductory international relations course, Snow's bestselling text presents original case studies that survey the state of the international system and look in depth at issues of current interest. The cases are geopolitically diverse, accessibly written, and highly salient amidst today's headlines. Examples include the Islamic State's violent quest for religious sovereignty in Syria and Iraq, Russian oil and U.S.-Russian relations, North Korea and nuclear weapons, multilateral solutions toward peace, international trade, and international migration.

DONALD M. SNOW is professor emeritus at the University of Alabama where he taught courses on international relations, American defense policy, and foreign policy. He is author of numerous books on national security and American foreign policy, including U.S. Foreign Policy: Back to the Water's Edge, Fifth Edition, and Regional Cases in U.S. Foreign Policy, Second Edition.
