ABSTRACT

ROXAS, RIEN P. "Self-Concept and Social Adjustment of Selected Endomorph Adolescents in Trece Martires National High School, Trece Martires City, Cavite". Undergraduate Thesis. Bachelor of Science in Psychology. Cavite State University, Indang Cavite. April 2013. Thesis Adviser: Mrs. Joy N. Babaan.

The study explored whether no significant relationship between self-concept and social adjustment of endomorph adolescents in Trece Martires Martires National High School, Trece Martires City, Cavite. It aimed to determine the self-concept of the participants in terms of physical, social, temperamental, educational, moral and intellectual. It also aimed to determine the social adjustment of the participants in terms of environment, peer, family and school.

The research was conducted in Trece Martires City, National High School including all annexes or branches of the school in November 2012 to January 2013. There were seventy (70) selected endomorph adolescents in Trece National High School were the participants in the study. The research used descriptive correlational method and purposive sampling in collecting the data. The instruments used were Pasao Self-Concept Scale and Social Adjustment Scale. Spearman Rank Correlation Test was used to statistically elucidate the data.

Data showed that majority of endomorph adolescents have below average self-concept and social adjustment. Meaning, the self-concept and social adjustment of the participants were not significantly related to each other. The results accepted the hypothesis that there is no significant relationship between self-concept and social adjustment of selected endomorph adolescents in Trece Martires National High School, Trece Martires City, Cavite.
